Today I'm in Orlando, Florida moderating the Love and Money Relationships panel for the Black Enterprise Women of Power Summit. <http://www.blackenterprise.com/2010/02/25/women-of-power-summit-2010/>

As Black History Month 2011 draws to a close, take a moment to bookmark a great resource for year-round personal money information - Ariel Investments. Take a look at the quick tips section to get started. <http://www.arielinvestments.com/quick-tips/>.

Founded in 1983, Ariel Investments is a patient, consistent and well-informed company of African-American professionals that says "patience serves as the core of our corporate philosophy".

The President of Ariel is Mellody Hobson, a bright and energetic young woman who assures you that "the most successful investors proceed, not by sudden leaps and bounds, but by the steady, painstaking work of research, stock selection and investment monitoring."

I've interview Mellody numerous times. She is a comfort zone kind of financial services professional. Ariel is a place where women of color and their families can find information and cutting edge studies regarding the state of Black America - financially. It's your money so take it personally TM.

Here's to your health and wealth.
